HH Architecture Designer Becomes Registered Architect

November 2, 2015

RALEIGH, N.C. – HH Architecture, a full-service design firm, is pleased to announce that Siler Ransmeier, AIA passed the Architectural Registration Examination and is now a Registered Architect.

Mr. Ransmeier’s focus is design and project management for both renovation and new construction projects. He oversees projects from design through construction and has significant experience with clients in higher education, municipal, and parks and recreation. Mr. Ransmeier began working for HH Architecture in 2010 as an architectural intern and has now assumed his new role as architect.

“Siler has taken on the challenge of becoming a registered architect and we are proud he has achieved this goal. We have watched him grow as a professional and become strong member of our team,” said Kristen Hess. “He is a talented designer and we are happy to celebrate his achievement.”

Mr. Ransmeier holds a Master of Architecture and a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering with a structural concentration from North Carolina State University.
